Now they are emerging in civilian dress on the same mission. A "heliport" may be as important an adjunct to hospitals in the future as operating rooms are today.

A string of hospital heliporta across the country, with helicopters standing condy emergency ambulance duty, is a dream of Mr Lawrence D. Bell, President of the Bell Aircraft Corp., one of the biggest manufacturers of helicopters in America.

The company will soon open the nation's third hospital heliport near its plant at Fort Worth, Texas. There is already one at the headquarters plant at Buffalo in New York state, and a third in use at Santa Monica, California. Beil officials believe it is only a matter of time before the use of helicopters as ambulances becomes common, and many hospitals will find it convenient to build a heliport,

A heliport is no more than a 20 ft. by 20 ft. platform or cleared area where a helicopter can land.

Special Value

Supporters of the hospital heliport idea at Bell are quick to emphasise they are not trying to replace the ordinary ambulance in routine cases. The helicoper has special ambulance value.

A 'copter was used recently to carry a heart attack victim from an inaccessible spot in a Montana forest to a medical centre miles away. The aircraft have ever been used to evacuato highway accident victims where traffic jams prevented the entrance of a conventional road ambulance. They have been used to rescue fishermen stranded on ice and snowbound farmers.

it unlikely a single hospital would be able to maintain its own helicopter ambulance.

But they believe the time will come when cities will buy a helicopter as they do a fire engine today. It could be put service-such as fire control and surveying.-United Press.

It had all started when the Continental Underground signafled London that the enemy were accurately plotting our course when we were carrying spies and supplies.

One night we rescued an expectant mother! It all started when Temspford received a top priority message that the wife of an executed French patriot must be brought to Britain at once. Her husband's dying wish was that she should have her baby in England. A bright moon heralded this mercy mission. It was a good omen for the Lysander's pilot, who reached the French coast without incident.

Many people feel sympathy for the Chinese in their newfound pride. That doesn't mean there's a great deal to be proud of by our own standards. They have a long, long way to go before they rival most of us either in state welfare, in education schemes or in technieat knowledge. What they've achieved has been largely by sheer physical effort, with a great deal of material assistance from the Russlans.

Their Marxist-Leninism has yet to prove a magic formula for producing a mighty industrial nation. All it does is stiffe the natural initiative of the Chinese people, by forcing them to spend long hours repeating the same dualy old lessons which simply do not apply to this modern world.

Whether we should offer that help. I'm not qualified to say. All I know is the first fine blush of Communist fervour carried China through the difficult period of revolution. It knitted the nation into a single unit. Hut don't forget it was Tse-tung who interpreted Communism for the Chinese people and added a few of his own embellishments. If you study his writings-as must Chinese youngster - you find powerful echoes of the great Chincse scholars and warriors who built up this country's culture in past centuries.

Today, the revolution is a fact, and the Chinese are getting down to the real task of reconstruction and development. The Russians have contracted to build some 141 new factories, and Russian devices are used at the moment for raising production - the Soviet concept of "socialist emulation" in which groups of workers challenge each other to achieve new production targets. There's reason to think it doesn't work to well among the Chinese. Every now and then you read in the official newspapers—and there are no others-about some poor little chap who kicked against the traces.

Scotland Picked Triple Crown

Says J. R. WATKINS

England's rugby selectors smarting under the prospects of holding the wooden spoon in the International table this season, have at last come to their seases. From the team picked to meet Scotland in the Calcutta Cup at Twickenham, it is obvious they realise the value of a settled side.

After a season of chopping and changing they have deserted their panic stations by announcing an unchanged side, with the exception of full back, for this all-important game.

(Blackhenth), who played in parture to see out the English the first trial at Falmouth, but season, and to avoid letting failed to gain a cap or a place in the following trials, comes in at full back for Harry Scott (Manchester). Scott did not come up to expectations against France, His touch-kicking was of a poor length. He was just another in the long line failures in this position.

Although Esteourt undoubtedly deserves this chance, his selection is a surprise. For at the end of the season, this 26year-old former Cambridge full back returns home to Rhodesia. He had planned to leave earlier was: "What a splendid present to take back with me," has twice recently appeared for the Barbarians, an Indication that he had not been forgotten. He was specially watched by the selectors in one of those games. England can gain no honours this season, But by beating Scotland they can avoid being loft with the wooden spoon and baulk the Scots' third and final step towards the Triple Crown. Can England win? They are due for some success. Yet I cannot hold out much hope for them. Scotland, with wins over and Ireland to their credit, have got their blood up. The confidence which was lacking earlier in the season, has returned. They are ready to take on all comers.

By relying on the side that beat Ireland, the team will play the same type of game which upset the Irish.

This is flory robust open play by the forwards, supported by the captain's tactical kicking. It is not pleasant to watch, But its effectiveness has been proved by Ireland and Jackie Kyle.

I think it will be proved again at Twickenham and take Scotland to victory and to the Triple Crown.

LEAGUE CRICKET

By "LEG GUARD"

The question uppermost in the minds of KCC supporters is, can the first team win one of their two remaining matches and thus' secure for themselves the senior cricket championship?

The last time the KCC won the title was in 1940-41 (when, incidentally, the club achieved the "double") and it must be confessed that this year's team is the first since the war to give the appearance of being capable of repeating the 1940-41 success.

TOMORROW

Governor's Cup-2nd. Game Club Stadium at 4.30 p.m. minutes each way. No Extra

The crowd will flock to Caroline Hill this afternoon and believe they will see a KMB victory . . . if the Busmen produce their real form. KMB play their football at top speed and if they swing the ball about and give Tang Yee-kit and Szeto Man room to move I think they will get the goals necessary to see them through,

Kitchee will make a fight of it. A victory for them here would open the league race wider than ever . . . but I just cannot see KMB beaten at this

Sing Tao should have little trouble in getting back on the winning way again when they meet the Royal Navy and Kwong Wah look good enough to bring back at least one point from the Police at Boundary

STRONG SIDE

The CAAF selectors have picked a strong side for the second match in the Governor's Cup series tomorrow and look a good bet to beat a not very inspiring HKFA side.

All the top Chinese stars will be in action and they will no doubt be out to avenge the crushing defeat their colleagues received in the first game of the series. It should be a good entertaining tussle and the CAAF boys should square the

Blarney Stone 'Sevens' Final Today

Starting with a record number of fifty-four entries, the Blarney Stone Sevena Sides have now been reduced to the final eight. Seven games therefore remain to be played off, and they will all take place this afternoon.

The opening game is between the 25 Field "A" and 42nd Field "A" and will, commence at 3 p.m. prompt. Just who will emerge the victor of this encounter is an awkward question, though 42nd Field took the more likely:

"A" while it is expected to be closed, should go to the Formers, who play a superior brand of Sevens rugger in comparison with the 27th HAA.

*A pm. RAF Mount Davis v 5 pm. Fljians "A" v Fijians v Fijians

In the third game, the favourites for the title, 72 LAA "A" meet Wayfoong, 72 LAA should win by a narrow margin,

The last game of the quarter finals finds 48 Club "A" pilted against RAF Mount Davis, The 48 Club "A" are the faster, and snappler team, and should win as the Airmen have never shone though they have won steadily

The semi-finals commence immediately after the 48 Club "A" 'game, and Far East Farm again look the more likely prospect, for their opponents are not in the same class.

A NEAR THING

The second semi-final will be a near thing but 72 LAA should scrape through into the final sympathy. ... it is asking far too afternoon, so their game with much so expect them to be at the Old Crocks has had to be especially when the everyone was looking forward

However, as mentioned on Thursday the Fijians will be playing in the interval and the Filian game should prove interesting League Finally at 5.40 pm, the finalists will meet. According to my ing with league leaders Kitchee calculations this brings together today, and the second game in Far East Farm "A" and 72 the Governor's Cup series to- LAA "A". The former will nsorrow, there will be sufficiency have advantage of an extra of interesting soccer. Here is twenty minutes rest, and they could easily wrest the title from 72 LAA. But the latter should win.

> Naturally in Sevens, any team can suddenly be knocked out of the Tournament and the above forecasts could be completely wrong. As the outsider I select 48 Club "A" (the Northamptonshires).

MAKING PREPARATION

Braves on the other hand are making every preparation for this big game. Though they are airendy out of the pennant race, their sole interest and hope is to beat the Champions and to get even with them as they suffered a narrow 5-4 setback in the first round, Judging from their latest success in trouncing the Pandas Aces a fortnight ago, The World Amateur Ice it is quite possible that they will

Safety of Contract Is Main Problem

By OSWALD JACOBY

WHEN you're playing rubber VV bridge, the safety of your construct is your chief consideration. This caused Sterling Floyd of Sarasota, Fla., to adopt a rather unusual line of play when he held the South cards in the hand shown today

West opened the jack of diamonds, and Floyd saw at a glance that the contract depended on limiting the loss to three tricks in the black puits. This would be impossible if the cards were located in the worst possible way, but it was possible breaks to provide against ecrtain bad breaks

With this thought in mind, South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and immediately laid down the acc of spades. This happened to dop the king of spades, revealing the exact trump situation

South hadn't expected this result, but he was providing against a doubleton king-jack in the West hand, among other distributions If no high card had dropped on the ace of spades, he would get to dummy and lead a trump towards his queen as the best way of limiting the trump loss.

After the king of spades dropped, declarer realised that he would have to lose two trump tricks to East. It was therefore necessary to limit the chib loss to one trick. After some thought. Floyd led a club towards dummy and put up the ace of clubs instead of trying a

This time the result was not so spectacular, since the king didn't drop; The fall of the jack was, however, eminently satis-factory. Declarer could continue with the queen of clubs to knock out the king. It was then easy to continue with clubs, allowing East to take his own trump stricks whenever he liked.
